

LEADERSHIP & MANAGEMENT

QNET presents:

Emotional Intelligence

Wednesday, February 28, 2018 – 8:15 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Location: QNET – Suite 660, 175 Hargrave Street, Winnipeg

Research shows that Emotional Intelligence (EI) can be twice as important as IQ and technical skills in determining who will become a top performer. Learn to use EI to enhance your personal, professional and leadership development, to build a high-performance team and to discover your next “star” performer.

This workshop will include:

- What is emotional intelligence (EI) and why should I be interested in it?
- The case for self-awareness and self-management: Don't be one of the “smart” people who fail.
- What is the connection to effective leadership?
- Review the 15 skills for success and complete a subjective analysis of your emotional intelligence using the EQ-i 2.0 model.
- Determine how EI can be used for leadership development, personal development, performance management, coaching, building high performing teams, selection, retention and career development.
- Receive the results of the EQ-i 2.0 Inventory. You are not required to share the details of the report in the session.
- Review tools and strategies to enhance your emotional intelligence to develop your career.

The EQ-i 2.0 brings you the most advanced and thoroughly researched measure of emotional intelligence in the assessment industry, yielding more powerful insights than before.

Facilitator:

Heather Erhard is the founder and Director of Erhard Associates, a management consulting, coaching, coaching and training firm dedicated to enhancing personal, team and organizational effectiveness.
